DEATH CLAIMS FRANK A. MULL

Prominent Business Man of This City Expires Following Illness of One Year.

BORN AND REARED IN MANILLA

Successful Grain Dealer and Banker
—Widow, Mother, Three Brothers and Sister Survive.

Frank A. Mull, 48 years old, one of Rushville's most prominent business men, died this morning, shortly after three-thirty o'clock, at his home, corner of Perkins and Sixth street after an illness of almost one year. The direct cause of death was uraemic poisoning, which was brought on by other complications. Mr. Mull had been in a serious condition for some time and death was expected.

Mr. Mull was the second eldest surviving son of Cyrus and Elenor J. Mull and was born September 27, 1864 in Manilla. He was educated in the common schools and later took a business course in a Cincinnati college. Mr. Mull spent most of his youth in Manilla and up until 1900 was a very successful farmer and trader. Frank A. Mull was married November 20, 1890 to Sarah E. Harpole of Bloomington, Ill. They continued to reside in Manilla until 1900 when Mr. Mull purchased the property in this city.

Since his residence in this city Mr. Mull had engaged in several lines of business but was probably more active in the elevator and grain business than any other. At the death of M. C. Burt he took over the elevators in Gwynnville, Morristown and Manilla and later acquired the elevator in Rays Crossing. Mr. Mull was very successful in operating his chain of elevators which are known as the Mull grain company.

As a business man Mr. Mull had few equals as is shown by his activities. He was a stockholder in the Rush County National bank, the Union State Bank of Morristown and established the Gwynnville bank in 1910. He was also a stockholder in the Consumers gas company of this city and member of the Rushville Social club. Mr. Mull is the second member of the Social club to die since its organization. Mr. Mull was a member of the Red Men and Masonic lodges. He was prominent in Masonic circles and was a charter member of the Knights Templar commandary here.

Besides his widow, Mr. Mull is survived by his mother, three brothers, Thomas K. Mull, Leonidas H. Mull and George F. Mull and one sister Miss Mary Mull. All are residents of this county except George F., who is of Indianapolis.

The funeral services will be conducted Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the late residence, by the Rev. V. W. Tevis, assisted by the Rev. J. B. Meacham. Burial will take place in East Hill cemetery and will be in charge of the Knights Templar. Friends may call any time.

SELLS FOR $200 AN ACRE.

Friends here have received word that John Morris, who formerly lived in Rush county, has sold a hundred acres of land near Elwood for two hundred dollars an acre. It is some of the best farming land in Madison county. Mr. Morris is the father of Carl Morris, the New York baritone who is well known here.

Fair tonight and Friday. Colder tonight.

REMAINS BROUGHT HERE

Former Resident of Rush County
Died in Marion.

The remains of Mrs. Anna Brooks, widow of the late Ben Brooks, who died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anna Spivey in Marion, were brought here this afternoon and burial will take place tomorrow morning in Pleasant Run cemetery. Short services will be conducted at the grave. Mrs. Brooks formerly lived in Noble township. She was about 80 years old. Mr. Brooks has been dead several years and she is survived by the one daughter.

MRS. ANNIE SHEWEY DIES IN ATTICA

Sister of Dr. Charles Parsons Passes
Away at Home of Son
There.

FUNERAL HERE TOMORROW

Mrs. Annie Shewey, 60 years old, widow of the late A. C. Shewey and a sister of Dr. C. H. Parsons of this city, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her son, Dr. Charles P. Shewey in Attica, Ind. Mrs. Shewey was well known here having lived for a number of years with Dr. and Mrs. Parsons and her death came as a great shock to her many friends, who were not aware that her condition was so serious.

Dr. Parsons has been in Attica since Sunday and was with his sister when the end came. Mr. Shewey has been dead eleven years. Mrs. Shewey is survived by one son, at whose home she died, one brother and one sister, Mrs. Mary Parrish of Indianapolis. The remains will arrive here tonight and will be taken to the Parsons residence in North Main street, where the funeral services will be conducted tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock by the Rev. C. M. Yocum. Burial will take place in East Hill cemetery.

ACTION WILL ALLOW HIGH COURT REVIEW

Judge Anderson Grants Writ of Error in Dynamite Case in Federal Court Today.

HOCKIN SAYS HE'S SATISFIED

Judge A. B. Anderson granted a writ of error in the dynamite case in federal court this morning, and it will be presented tomorrow to the United States court of appeals in Chicago, says today's Indianapolis News. Attorneys for the defendants, who were convicted, withdrew the application for a writ of supersedeas, and the writ of error was granted, in order that the high court might review the case.

Newt Harding, attorney for the defense, said Herbert S. Hockin, sentenced to six years in prison, was satisfied with the judgment, and did not desire to appeal. Judge Anderson said he had been informed others held the same view.

The Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias will have inspection and degree work tonight.

INSPECTORS ARE TO INVESTIGATE

Employees of Railroad Commission to Inquire About Installation of
C. H. & D. Block.

GLENWOOD EAST TO OHIO

Statutory Penalty is $1,000 a Week
Until Work is Completed—Yesterday Last Day.

Inspectors for the railroad commission of Indiana have been ordered to investigate immediately the work of installing block signals on the C. H. & D. railroad between Glenwood and the Ohio state line. In case the block signal work is not completed suit may be brought against the railroad to collect the statutory penalty of $1,000 a week until the work is completed.

A number of directors and other officials of the C. H. & D. were indicted by the Marion county grand jury for involuntary manslaughter, because of their failure to have necessary protection for passengers installed on the road. The commission, recently, after its investigation of the Irvington wreck, issued an order that the C. H. & D. must have automatic block signals installed on the eastern half of its lines in Indiana, with the terminus in Indianapolis, the work to be completed by August 1, 1913.

It is understood the defense of the railroad officials will be that the company had not been ordered by the railroad commission to install block signals on the part of the line where the wreck occurred. But the law passed by the last legislature says it shall be unlawful to operate steam or electric lines in Indiana after January 1, 1912 unless an extension of time is granted by the commission. Such was not the case with the C. H. & D.

Members of the railroad commission say, however, that the C. H. & D. was ordered to establish block signals on the part of the line between Glenwood and the Ohio state line before January 1, 1913, and it was understood at that time between the members of the commission and the railroad officials that the rest of the line, that part between Indianapolis and Glenwood, would be equipped with block signals after this work was done.

However, there is no record of this understanding except certain correspondence between the commission and the road, which may be used as evidence in the case against the officials. The questions of an understanding as to extension of time is important. Without an extension of time the road failing to have the equipment in by January, 1912, would have been violating the law.

A day or so following the Irvington wreck the company's officials asked for an extension of time for the installation of the block signals, having then consumed the time between March and November without making attempts to install the signals. Later, the official withdrew their request for additional time in which to install the signals. It is understood the road then threw a large force of workmen on the Glenwood-Ohio line district in the attempt to complete the work by the time designated by the commission. Whether that has been done will be reported on by the commission's inspectors probably this week.

That the Irvington wreck would have been prevented if proper block signals had been installed was the assertion of Chairman W. J. Wood, of the commission, at the time of the

FEARSOME IS THIS FORECAST

Hicks Declares January Will be Month of Storms With Occasional Blizzard.

REACTIONARY ONE DUE NOW

Cold Wave Will Sweep Whole United States Latter Part of Month.

Following is Irl Hicks' weather predictions for the month of January:

Reactionary storm period is central on the 3d, 4th and 5th. The chief astronomic causes of disturbances at this time, are the equinoxes of Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The month will open with cloudy, unsettled weather. Falling barometer, bringing rain, sleet and snow, will pass over the country from west to east, on and next to the 3d, 4th and 5th. Sleet will be a marked feature of these storms, especially in central and northern regions, and with a low dip of the barometer heavy snow will fall and a cold wave from the north-east will wind up the period. A seismic period covers the 4th to the 10th, central on the 7th.

A regular storm period is central on the 9th, extending from the 7th to the 13th. A number of decided storms will pass eastwardly across the country during and immediately following this period, bringing a prolonged period spell of heavy storms and hard winter weather. This is at the center of the Mars period, combined with Vulcan, Mercury, Jupiter. Much the same character of storms the weather existing at this time, and for several previous periods, will prevail through January and February.

A reactionary storm period will take up any prolonged disturbances on the 14th, 15th and 16th. The Mars period is central on the 15th with the Moon at first quarter and near the celestial equator. Falling barometer, change to warmer, with possibly winter lightning and thunder about the 13th, will bring continued storms into these reactionary days ending in general snow storms, with big cold wave following for several days.

A regular storm period covers the 19th to the 24th, being central on the 21st. Moon is at extreme north on the 20th, full on the 22d, and in perigee on the 23d. This period will culminate on and touching the 22d, 23d and 24th, progressing eastward, in low barometer and rain southward with stiff blizzards and high gales northward, all followed by rising barometer and cold wave sweeping from the northwest far into the south. A decided seismic period covers the 19th to the 24th, being central on the 22d. Watch for earthquake reports on and about the 22d, 23d and 24th.

A reactionary storm period falls on the 26th, 27th and 28th. Moon is on the celestial equator the 26th, calling for rapid rise in temperature, falling barometer with possibly winter thunder storms on and touching that date. Rising barometer, snow and change to much colder will wind up the period. The indications are that January will prove a month of hard winter storms and weather.

DIES AT AGE OF 94 YEARS

John Lowden, Former Resident Expires in Indianapolis.

The funeral services of John D. Lowden, a former resident of Rush county, who died Monday night at his home in Indianapolis were conducted this afternoon at his home there. Mr. Lowden was ninety-four years old. He was well known here, having many relatives in this county. Mr. and Mrs. Clara Bebout, Mr. and Mrs. George Krammes and Ed Lowden were among those from here attending the funeral.

FIRST PARCEL TO REACH CINCINNATI

Was First Package Dispatched From Rushville Postoffice Under the New Rate Yesterday.

BUSINESS INCREASED TODAY

The small dresser sent by Clarence Cross to his daughter, Milutine, in Cincinnati yesterday morning, which was the first package dispatched by parcels post from the Rushville postoffice, was also the first parcels post bundle to be received in Cincinnati. Business under the new rate picked up considerably today. It was expected that many patrons of the rural routes would take advantage of the new rate. They did not have an opportunity yesterday because the mail carriers did not go over their routes. The postoffice was open only three hours yesterday and business was better than expected at first.

There seems to be little doubt but what parcels post will be patronized, especially by large concerns. Local postoffice employees understand that a Chicago mail order house has a standing order for three cars a day in which to ship parcels by the new rate. If the new system survives the first few weeks of its existence, postoffice officials have every reason to believe that it will succeed. Many firms are taking advantage of it for advertising purposes.

JAMES HAVENS DIES OF DROPSY

Well Known Factory Workman, Who Has Been Sick Four Months,
Succumbs Today.

CONFINED TO BED TWO WEEKS

James Havens, age forty-nine years, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Havens, in Jersey City this morning at eight-forty o'clock of dropsy. He has been sick for four months and has been unable to work, but it is only the last two weeks that he has been confined to his bed.

Mr. Havens was a well known workman at the Innis, Pearce furniture factory, having been employed there continuously for twenty-three years. He was a member of the St. Paul M. E. church. The survivors, besides his parents, are two sisters, Mrs. Ed Muire and Mrs. Ralph Kennedy, of this city and one brother, Will Havens of this city. The arrangements for the funeral had not been completed this afternoon.

"TIP" HERE WAS ABOUT CORRECT

Developments at Connersville Indicate That Judge Gray Contemplates Change of Residence.

DISPOSES OF HIS PROPERTY

Local Attorneys Are Working Diligently
For Separate Court
For Rush County.

Rushville attorneys had a very good "tip" when they heard a rumor that George Gray of Connersville, presiding judge of the judicial circuit consisting of Franklin, Fayette and Union counties, was preparing to vacate his Connersville office and move to Brookville, when the proceedings that have just come to light in Connersville are considered.

The Connersville News says that Judge Gray "has transferred his holdings in Conwell Square, consisting of three new houses and lots or parts of lots 6, 7 and 8 to his brother, Quincy Gray. The consideration named in the deed is one dollar. He also transfers to Finly H. Gray another piece of property, lot 30, Connersville addition, for a consideration of $1,276.

"It is understood that Judge Gray is preparing to return to Brookville to reside and there is a rumor that he has vacated his office here and that his office is already in the town down the valley."

The Connersville News points out that Judge Gray's vacation of his Connersville office has special significance in the light of the article in Tuesday's Daily Republican which was in effect that a story had been circulated that Judge Gray planned to move to Brookville so that if a judicial circuit is made up of Rush and Franklin counties by the next legislature, which will be asked to slice up the sixteenth judicial circuit of Rush and Shelby counties, he will be located properly so that he can be installed as judge of the circuit and be in a safely Democratic district.

Several Rushville attorneys are working diligently to get a separate circuit for Rush county, believing that this county is as much entitled to court nine months in the year as is a number of other counties in this neighborhood which were made separate courts some time ago.

Attorneys are said to have visited in Connersville and Shelbyville recently looking toward this end. It is said that some have made it emphatically understood that they will not support the effort of the Shelbyville attorneys to bring about a division in this circuit unless it is recommended that Rush county also be given a separate circuit.

It is said that a number of Shelbyville lawyers have looked favorably on the proposition of Rushville attorneys. They do not care particularly what becomes of the Rush circuit court. The only thing that concerns them is for Shelby county to be given a separate circuit.

The Shelby county representative to the legislature has prepared a bill asking for a separate circuit for Shelby county, and in the proposed measure is a recommendation that Rush be joined with Franklin county. It is said that Shelbyville attorneys will be very willing to recommend a separate circuit for Rush county if they can get the support of a majority of the Rushville lawyers for their plan.

After reprinting a part of the Daily Republican's article, the Connersville News adds:

Of course Judge Gray may have other reasons for transferring his

THE FURNITURE STERILIZED

Preparatory to the Coming Session of the Sixty-Eighth General Assembly of Indiana, the Statehouse Custodian Has Had the House and Senate Chambers Swept and Garnished and Put in Spick and Span Order.

Indianapolis, Jan. 2.—At a cost of approximately $2,500, Thomas F. Colbert, custodian of the statehouse, has finished the work of overhauling the house and senate chambers for the incoming legislators, at a cost of approximately $2,500. Employees have been at work for five weeks cleaning both houses, and the result is a "bright and shiny look that will make the veterans of the two houses smile happily when they arrive."

New curtains have been provided, the old draperies at the windows have been thoroughly cleaned, the carpets have been renovated, new linoleum has been placed in the lobbies, the speaker's and lieutenant governor's rooms have been cleaned and refinished, the walls have been cleaned, the lights renovated and cleaned, and each seat and desk cleaned. A new clock will adorn the wall above the presiding officer in each house, for the biennial turning back on the last night of the session, if such action should, as usual, be necessary.

All of the furniture in both houses has been sterilized. Mr. Colbert said he believed there would be no reports of deaths of members because of the insanitary conditions of the legislative halls this year.

EARLY TRIAL IN KNABE CASE

Prosecutor at Indianapolis Begins Preparations For Hearing.

Indianapolis, Jan. 2.—With Dr. William B. Craig and A. M. Ragsdale under arrest and released under bond to appear in criminal court when called to answer for the alleged murder of Dr. Helene Knabe, Oct. 23, 1911, the state's attorney and the detective agency which obtained evidence against the men, will begin at once preparations for trial.

According to the statement of Frank C. Baker, county prosecutor, an effort will be made to try the men early in the spring.

"I think the importance of the case is such that the men should be given an opportunity to meet the evidence against them as soon as possible," said Mr. Baker in discussing the case.

Mr. Baker will be assisted in prosecuting the case by John W. Holtzman, who was retained as attorney for the committee of the Local Council of Women, which employed private detectives to take up the case after the police had declined to continue the investigation.

LOOKING INTO THIS CASE

Twelve-Year-Old Girl at Richmond Married.

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 2.—Prosecutor Reiler and Mrs. Elizabeth Candler, officer of the juvenile court, are investigating the marriage of a girl alleged to be only twelve years old, to a man twenty-five. The girl, Georgiana Doyle, lived with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allen. She was married to Benjamin F. Hensley, and the county clerk questioned the age of the girl, who said she was sixteen.

It is alleged that an affidavit signed by the grandparents set forth the girl was of marriageable age. According to the information which the prosecutor has, the girl is only a few months over twelve.

McManigal on Way West.

Indianapolis, Jan. 2.—Ortie McManigal, the star witness for the government in the recent dynamite cases, is on his way back to California, where he probably will receive his sentence for the part he played in the dynamite outrages. There is much speculation as to just what punishment McManigal will get from the California courts. He has been in jail for about two years, and it was largely through his confession and testimony on the witness stands that the government and the state of California were able to obtain the convictions of the conspirators and the McNamaras. It is the belief here that McManigal either will get a light sentence or will be allowed his liberty on a suspended sentence.

Witnessed Husband's Tragic Death.

Winchester, Ind., Jan. 2.—Albert O. Cecil, aged forty-two, was killed instantly at Parker, west of here, by a westbound interurban car. A widow and two children survive. Cecil was a driver for one of the township school wagons. He was leaving his home to start his day's work when the accident occurred. The horses hitched to the wagon were killed and the wagon was demolished. The accident happened a hundred feet from Cecil's home, and his wife, who was standing at the window, was one of the few witnesses.

South Carolina was visited Wednesday by a short but severe earthquake shock. No serious damage has been reported.

Be Reasonable in Selecting Your Shoes

Give your five toes room for five toes, House them in a pair of shoes stamped Cox. Then you will understand why so many people buy our shoes instead of others. It is not the price alone that makes the better shoe, but better fit, better looks, better service, with the better price. You can buy shoes anywhere, but Cox's shoes can be bought only at Cox's shoe store. It's even a better shoe than you are now wearing even if it is a shoe you are satisfied with. Try a pair of them.

PRESIDENT TAFT IS AROUSED BY CRITICS

Latest Development In the Canal Situation.

Washington, Jan. 2.—President Taft, determined that under no circumstances so long as he is president the Panama canal shall be made the football of politics, is now likely to abandon his intention of reorganizing the government of the canal zone and naming Colonel George W. Goethals as chief officer of the canal. Developments here indicate the president will not nominate Colonel Goethals to be civil governor of the canal zone, nor will he make any move toward changing the present establishment on the zone. The president returned from Panama with Colonel Goethals in his personal party, fully intending to name the colonel to be governor of the zone. When he learned of the acrimonious attacks made on his plan by southern Democrats, the president was amazed. When he heard the alleged basis of these attacks was the fear that Colonel Goethals would not distribute the canal patronage in accordance with the wishes of the Democrats, he was exasperated.

The news of the opposition forming against him on purely political grounds likewise amazed Colonel Goethals. It is understood the president's probable abandonment of the plan to name Colonel Goethals to be governor is in accord with the wishes of that officer. Colonel Goethals has often stated to friends that he never would permit the canal work to be in the least influenced by politics. The president will probably leave the present organization intact, thus preventing any fight on Colonel Goethals.

Not a Matter of Sentiment.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Discussing the progress of the work on the Panama canal here, Colonel Goethals, chief engineer, made clear the circumstances which will govern the opening of the waterway to the first ship. In the first place sentiment will cut no figure in sending the first ship through the canal, according to Colonel Goethals. The first ship will go through from ocean to ocean when the canal is ready and not a day sooner or a day later, without regard for the observance of the anniversary of Balboa's discovery of the Pacific or other similar considerations likely to appeal to the people at home.

Theolog Upset His Stove.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 2.—A theolog preparing his New Year's dinner on a alcohol stove in Alexander Hall, a part of Princeton theological seminary, had the misfortune to upset it and by the time the firemen arrived flames were mounting high from the cupola and smoke was pouring from all the windows on the top floor. The bell, which has hung there since 1820, was melted. The upper part of the dormitory was badly burned before the fire was finally extinguished.

Keeping From Typhoid.

There seems to be a wide-spread belief that typhoid fever is peculiarly a disease of small communities. The regular autumnal increase in this disease in most cities is even referred by some writers to infection contracted during a vacation "in the country." Whatever the importance of "vacation typhoid"—and there is reason to think it has been overestimated—there can be no doubt that, contrary to popular opinion, in some localities typhoid is more prevalent in urban communities.

The incidence of typhoid fever in city and country communities in several New England states has been recently studied by Sedwick, Taylor and MacNutt. These authors conclude that as far as the state of Massachusetts is concerned typhoid could not be said to be a rural disease in the eighteen years prior to 1908, but was on the contrary distinctly more prevalent in urban communities. In Connecticut a similar condition existed, but in New Hampshire it appeared that there was no marked difference in this respect between rural and urban groups. Before 1890, as these authors point out, typhoid deaths in both Massachusetts and Connecticut were more prevalent in proportion to the population in the country than in the city districts.

It is not difficult to understand these results. The death-rate from typhoid fever depends more on other factors than on city and country conditions as such. A large city with polluted water-supply may maintain a constantly higher typhoid fever rate than the adjacent country towns and rural districts. On the other hand a city with a good water-supply, a pasteurized milk-supply and a proper system of disposing of excretal refuse will today almost certainly have less typhoid fever than the small communities in its immediate neighborhood. Probably few places in the United States, large or small, will have so low a death-rate from typhoid for the year 1912 as Chicago and Cleveland.

Improper methods of disposing of excreta in the country, with the attendant danger of fly infection, would seem to favor the spread of typhoid fever in rural districts, but a counterbalancing factor is the contact with a large number of persons which is characteristic of city life and would tend to increase the opportunities for infection in cities through the agency of carriers or convalescents.

COLORED MEN NOT TRIED

Case Postponed Because Prosecutor Was Out of City.

The trial of Sidney Haggard, Nathan Fletcher, Roy Morris, Tom Overton and Thomas Arnold, the five colored men caught in a raid Saturday night in an alleged poker room, which was to have been held this afternoon was postponed because the prosecuting attorney was out of the city. The men are charged with visiting a gambling house. It is not known when the trial will be held but probably not before the first of next week.

Society News

Miss Edith Hiner will entertain the Embroidery Club at her home tomorrow afternoon.

The Friday Afternoon Bible class will meet with Mrs. Lon Link at her home in North Perkins street tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Heizer of Indianapolis formerly of Rush county, entertained at a New Years dinner at their home, Mr. and Mrs. James A. The New Year's dance given by the Psi Iota Xi sorority at the Modern Woodman hall last evening was attended by about fifty couple and was a thoroughly enjoyable affair. The girls of the sorority will use the proceeds from the dance to help defray the expenses of the annual convention of the sorority which will be held here next summer. Colored musicians of Indianapolis played. Among the visiting guests, besides a number of college students who are here for the holidays, were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bristor of Indianapolis, the Misses Ruth and Mary Sefton, Louis Dalmberg and several others of Greensburg, Miss Lucy Posey of New York, the Misses Mary Bookwalter and Laura Lindley of Indianapolis.

The open house held by the women of the St. Paul M. E. church New Year's day was a very pleasant event from every standpoint. Members of the church were received from two to four in the afternoon and from seven-thirty to ten in the evening. Large crowds were out for both reception hours.

The literary and musical programs were highly acceptable. Short and appropriate talks were made by the Rev. V. W. Tevis, James E. Watson and the pastor, the Rev. W. H. Wylie. Solos by Miss Norma Smith and Mary Louise Poe were thoroughly enjoyed, as was the program of readings given by Miss Frances Frazee. Light refreshments of cake and coffee were served. The women of the church are highly elated over the interest taken in the event for it is the first time anything of the sort has been attempted for many years.

Mrs. Austin's famous pancakes make a really delicious, wholesome breakfast.

He Comes Up Smiling

By Charles
Sherman

They were rising from the table now. The general, having dined to his satisfaction, was beaming with good humor and stories. Excusing himself a moment, Bartlett hurried to the telegraph station in the office. He hunted for his code, but could not find it and had to write the telegram in English. It would be safe enough. The operator was a raw country youth who wouldn't be able to understand it anyway, and it would go direct to his broker, who would be spending the day at his country place on Long Island.

"Have W. H. B.," wrote Bartlett. "Will take him for a week's tour in the country, with Billy's help. Eat them up."

"Rush it," he ordered sternly, "and bring me the answer. I will wait for it on the porch."

The news soon spread that the stranger dining with the general and his daughter was none other than the suddenly famous young stock broker, whose grim defiance of the Street was told in head-lines in the daily papers, and whose life from the cradle up was thrillingly recounted in the Sunday supplement. When he had changed his seat at the table, there had been a suppressed titter of amusement for the eccentricities of a great man, and those who made a study of human nature saw plainly an indication of that character which knew what it wanted and would get it and keep it, overriding all obstacles.

As they stood on the porch after dinner, waiting for Bartlett to rejoin them, the four were soon surrounded by an ever-growing circle of friends and near friends, and to his pained surprise, the Watermelon was the admired center of the group. All looked on him much as the general did, not so much as a man but as a character out of the Sunday supplement. Bored to exhaustion, he shook hands limply with a score or more whom he did not know and did not want to know.

It was getting late and he would have to return the clothes and become once more merely the Watermelon. He had forgotten the beauty show and had no heart for it now. When he left Billy nothing more counted, nothing mattered. Old clothes or good, hobo or millionaire, without Billy, one was as desirable as the other. He would return the clothes and beat it up the line that evening. James and Mike could go to grass. Meanwhile, instead of getting the most out of the short space of time allotted to him and having Billy alone somewhere, here he was shaking hands with a frowsy bunch of high-brows.

The Watermelon looked around, desperately, miserably. Billy was gazing at him from the edge of the crowd, awe fighting with admiration and amusement on her small face. Henrietta had presented him gaily, to this one and that, and the general, thoroughly in his element, stood by and showed him off as though he were a new horse or the latest model motor-car.

"How could you tear yourself away from the Street?" asked one impressionable young thing.

"I don't know," said the Watermelon. "Wall Street is practically my home." And he gazed languidly over their heads into the trees across the road.

"Oh, Mr. Bachelor, do you think the tariff will affect the cost of living?" inquired one of his new friends. "So many people claim that it will."

Henrietta laughed. "Poor Mr. Bachelor," said she. "You can now realize some of the drawbacks to greatness."

"The tariff," said the Watermelon monotonously, "is all right. Take it from me."

He glanced again at Billy. The clock in the garage struck two and he hesitated no longer. "My car," he muttered vaguely, and made for the steps. He ran down them and started around the hotel toward the stables. As he passed near the place where Billy stood, he looked up straight into her eyes.

"Aren't you coming to see my car—Billy?" he asked, the odd little name below his breath, so that even she did not hear.

"Oh, yes, indeed," said Billy.

He caught her hands and swung her down to the lawn beside him.

At the garage they did not stop. The Watermelon heard the general panting behind in the distance, but he did not pause. Ungratefully he led the way down a narrow path around the stable, into the deep, cool shade of the woods. It was two. He would give himself until the clock struck three, before he slunk away into the unknown again.

CHAPTER VI.

What Is Heaven Like?

They found a little mossy knoll beside the brook and Billy made herself comfortable against a tree trunk, while the Watermelon sprawled at her feet.

"Say," said he, "what do those guys take me for? The editor of the 'Answer to correspondents' page?"

"I bet you know as much," said Billy with artless simplicity.

"Sure, I know as much," grinned the Watermelon. "But I'm not paid to tell what I know. It would be starvation rates for mine," he added.

Billy laughed. "Didn't you ever go to school?" she asked.

"Yes, I went to school, when father didn't forget."

"Didn't forget?"

"He had eight kids, you see, and he used to say a man couldn't be responsible for more than six. Two kids, he used to say, were a blessing, four a care, six a burden, and eight an affliction, and no man is responsible for his afflictions."

"I wish I had some relatives," said Billy wistfully. "There are only daddy and I. Don't you like relatives, some one who belongs to you?"

"Father used to say that relatives were an affliction, and he supposed a man had to have afflictions to make a man of him, but if he had had, any influence with Providence, he would have preferred not to be a man."

"Who was your father?" asked Billy.

"A minister," answered the Watermelon, clasping his hands behind his head, and staring up at the interlaced boughs overhead. "A country minister. He used to say that there was just one thing in this world more pitiful than a country minister, and that was his wife."

"Why," cried Billy, "the papers said he used to be a policeman."

"I thought you didn't read the papers?"

"I don't, just the Sunday supplements," said Billy frankly, as one to whom his intellectual development is of minor importance.

The Watermelon wheeled over with a laugh and caught her hand. "Hang dad!" he exclaimed. "Where'd you get your name?"

He drew himself up on the log beside her, as near as he dared. He wanted to put his arm around the slim waist, but decided that he had better not.

She jerked her hand away and laughed, her small nose wrinkled, the dimple coming and going. "Don't you like it?"

"Sure. It's classy all right. But what is the long of it?"

"Wilhelmina. Dad's is William, just like yours. We're all Billies."

"Mine ain't William," sneered the Watermelon, edging a bit nearer.

Her eyes opened and she stared in frank surprise. "But the papers say—"

"The papers lie faster than I can," said the Watermelon, "and that's fairly speedy." He had only an hour and he did not care what she thought between him and the papers. "Billy is a darned cute little name, and a cute little girl," he added.

"I guess you can lie faster than the papers," said she.

"I can when I want to," admitted the Watermelon. "Father used to say that a man that couldn't lie was a fool and one who wouldn't, a bigger."

"I should think if your father was a minister that he wouldn't lie," said Billy severely.

"I know. But he used to say he had to in a business way. To tell a man that there was a bigger hell than this earth was a lie on the face of it."

"Why?"

"Because there couldn't be, he used to say."

"Don't you believe in Heaven?" demanded Billy.

"Sure," said the Watermelon.

"What do you think it's like?" asked Billy.

"A watermelon patch," said the Watermelon promptly. "Just when all the fruit is ripe. Don't you think so?"

"I think it's an ice-cream counter," said Billy.

"Now. Heaven is a grove of trees back of a white garage. There's a fallen log and a couple sitting on it."

"I should think that would be monotonous," said Billy. "Do they talk?"

"Sure they talk. Heaven ain't a deaf and dumb asylum."

"I should think they would get talked out during eternity."

"Ah," said the Watermelon, leaning a bit nearer, "eternity is but a minute."

"What do they talk about?"

"Heaven."

"Are they angels?"

"One is."

Billy laughed. "Who are you?" she asked, leaning toward him, one hand resting on the log between them, her steady eyes on his face.

The Watermelon again drew forth the card case, extracted a card and presented it to her with a flourish.

Holding it, she shook her head dubiously. "I mean are you a stock-broker? Are you on 'Change? Father has been nearly all his life, and he looks it. His eyes and—everything. Your eyes are different, quite different. I don't mean in color and size, for of course they would be, but in expression."

"How do you know?" asked the Watermelon. "You have only seen their expression when I have been looking at you, and a man doesn't look at a girl as if she were the tape from the ticker."

BONAR LAW

Unionist Leader Predicts
Disaster Over Home Rule.

HAD TO STOP FIGHT IN THE 18TH ROUND McCarty Made a Punching Bag Out of Palzer.

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—When Luther McCarty defeated Al Palzer in the Vernon arena New Year's afternoon, speed and cleverness won him the title of heavyweight champion of the world. The fight was so one-sided that Referee Charles Eytan stopped it in the eighteenth round to save the reeling Palzer from further punishment. McCarty, Palzer's curly-haired superior, was smiling and scarcely scratched when the fight ended.

Palzer's eyes were almost closed, his mouth, nose, cheek and ears cut, and he presented a bloody and battered appearance. Only his capacity for standing punishment saved him from being knocked out, for McCarty landed on his jaw repeatedly.

McCarty, in addition to the championship, wins an attractive and remunerative theatrical engagement, a large purse and the diamond-studded championship belt made at the order of Tom McCarey, the fight promoter, for presentation to the winner. The arena seats, when filled to capacity, 11,000. Several thousand persons were unable to get in.

ULSTERITES NOT TO BE EXCLUDED

Have to Take Their Portion With Rest of Ireland.

MUST SWALLOW BITTER PILL

The British House of Commons, Amid Scenes Displaying Much Rancor, Decided That Ulster Must Accept Home Rule Along With the Other Irish Provinces, Despite Repeated Threats of Resistance to the Death.

London, Jan. 2.—According to a vote in the house of commons, Ulster must accept the home rule bill as well as every other province in Ireland. An amendment was proposed by the Unionist members to exclude Ulster from the operations of the bill. This amendment was debated at some length, and with considerable rancor, but it was finally beaten by a vote of 294 to 197.

When the debate opened Sir Edward Carson, the chairman of the Ulster Unionist organization, earnestly deprecated what he called the tendency of the Ministerial members to laugh at and treat with levity the attitude of the Orange Ulstermen. It was a stern fact and he (Sir Edward) was convinced that nothing but force could compel the Ulstermen to break their covenant and submit to home rule.

Premier Asquith in reply said the government in framing the measure had taken all precautions possible to guard against the Irish parliament misusing its powers, and was still prepared to add any safeguards that could be shown to be necessary, but they could not accept the proposed amendment. If Ulster was excluded the bill would be wrecked.

John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, described the amendment as a piece of political tactics.

Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, said disaster would follow if the bill were carried against the will of Ulster. He expressed the belief that the Unionists in Ireland would rather be ruled by a foreign country than by the Irish Nationalists.

Winston Churchill interrupted with a sarcastic reference to Mr. Law's remark about a foreign country, saying: "This is the latest Tory threat: Ulster will secede to Germany." This stung the Unionists and a great uproar followed.

There were shouts of "Germany?" "Which Germany?" "Who said Germany?"

The speaker appealed in vain for order, while all the time Churchill stood up and attempted to continue his remarks. Every time he attempted to speak he was interrupted, and finally he sat down after having apparently succeeded in achieving his bile-stirring purpose by his gratuitous allusion to Germany.

The amendment was then put to a vote and beaten by the government combine.

TAILORS' STRIKE EXTENDING

All Branches of the Trade Now Being Brought Into It.

New York, Jan. 2.—The strike of the garment workers has been extended to the bushellers' branch of the men's clothing trade, as a result of a meeting of the committee of five in charge of the strike. This will affect the ready-made clothing departments of the large department stores and of the larger clothing establishments, where all the work is done in large factories instead of through contractors.

The bushellers are the tailors who do the fitting of ready-made clothing, making such changes as are necessary before the clothing is delivered. One of the committee of five said that the strike of the bushellers will bring out from 7,000 to 8,000 more tailors. The bushellers will demand 20 per cent advance on the present wages and a minimum wage of not less than $18 a week.

"The strike will be extended in the other trades," he continued. The general secretary of the United Garment Workers said that there is little doubt that the strike will be complete in all factories and shops in the city. All the unions involved are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, which, he said, will stand behind the strikers.

Confined to the Tariff.

Washington, Jan. 2.—According to information from a reliable quarter, the special session of congress that will be called early in the Wilson administration, will begin on or about March 15, and in all probability its activities will be confined to the tariff. President Elect Wilson has made it known to Democratic leaders that in framing a legislative program he will pay special attention to the tariff, anti-trust legislation, and a bill or bills amending the banking and currency laws. At present Governor Wilson doubts the advisability of asking congress to do more than to revise the tariff at the special session.

PEACE MAY YET COME OUT OF IT

St. James Negotiations Not Wholly Hopeless.

DISASTER WAS THREATENED

Disgusted With the Dilatory Tactics of Turkish Envoys, Bulgarian Minister at One Time Was Ready to Make Declaration Which Would Have Re-kindled Embers of War, but Diplomacy of Venezelos Averted This.

London, Jan. 2.—The session ended calmly and with prospects of a successful outcome, despite the fact that the peace negotiations between the Balkan states and Turkey were threatened with disaster yesterday, when the Bulgarian minister announced that he was about to inform the foreign office that the allies were ready to recommence the war, the session ended calmly and with prospects of a to recommence the war. General feeling among officials in London seems to indicate the break made by the Bulgarian did not reveal the true attitude of mind of the allies, which was first feared.

Michael Madjaroff, Bulgaria's minister at London, was the man who made the threat to resume the war. He is acting as a Bulgarian representative at the conference. Madjaroff during the conference had continually made objections to the dilatory tactics of the Turkish plenipotentiaries. When the session opened yesterday practically the same proposals were made by the Ottomans. These had already been refused by the allies at the preceding meeting, and their appearance again made the representatives of the Balkan states alive with anger.

The indignation of all the envoys was apparent as soon as they heard the proposals repeated, the Bulgarians, Montenegrins, Greeks and Servians uniting in protest. The lead was taken by Madjaroff. He did not hesitate to tell the Turks that they were casting an insult in the face of the allies to propose that their difficulties be settled by the powers after each country had gone to the extent of sending envoys to London with the ostensible purpose of making peace and of settling just those questions.

Then it was that Madjaroff walked out of St. James in the direction of the foreign office. The proceedings in the council chamber came to an end at once.

Premier Venezelos of Greece seems to be proving what has already been said of him, namely, that he is the master mind of the delegates. He courteously questioned the representatives of the sultan and drew from them answers which seemed to broaden the ground of the defined written clauses. Then he said the allies would retire and consider the matter. The delegates left the room and returned in a few minutes, when they read a written reply. This reply took cognizance of the cession of territory west of the vilayet as an advance which made discussion of terms feasible, but required that the territory described be "separated" instead of "occupied." Other objections were made. Everything was left unchanged and an adjournment was taken until Friday with the understanding that if the Turkish plenipotentiaries receive more ample powers to deal with the contentious points the meeting would stand adjourned until Saturday.

It is said the five clauses in contention are:

First—The readiness of Turkey to cede all the territories occupied by the troops of the allies to the westward of the vilayet of Adrianople, the porte promising that the frontiers and the constitution of an autonomous Albania should be determined by the powers.

Second—Turkey to retain the vilayet of Adrianople, but to arrange with Bulgaria for the rectification of the frontier thereof.

Third—Turkey is unable to modify her refusal to surrender the Aegean islands, because they are an integral part of Anatolia.

Fourth—The question of Crete to be decided by the four protecting powers, England, France, Russia and Germany. The fifth clause is technical and unimportant.

SEVEN HURLED TO DEATH

Big C. & O. Freight Engine Plunges Through Bridge.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 2.—A Chesapeake & Ohio engine of the heaviest type, pulling a westbound freight, plunged through a temporary bridge spanning the Guyan river at Guyandotte on the eastern edge of this city. Seven men were hurled to death and a half dozen more seriously hurt. The dead are:

F. E. Weber, engineer; Henry White, watchman; Charles Haddie, Emmet Wood, James Crawford, J. G. Wheeler and Charles Coyner, bridge workers.

The financial loss to the railroad company it is estimated will reach a half million dollars. The railway officials claim that the collapse of the bridge was due to the piling being undermined by the high stage of water now prevailing in the Guyan river.

Fifteen men were working on the bridge and eleven of them went down, five being rescued from the river. The others fell under the engine and cars.

Escaped After Fifteen Years.

W. P. Broyles made a successful escape after fifteen years of suffering from kidney and bladder troubles. Foley Kidney Pills released him and will do just the same for others. He says: "They cured a most severe backache with painful bladder irregularities, and they do all you claim for them. Refuse substitutes. F. B. Johnson and Company." (Advertisement.)

It's Funny

How minds will differ. It would be absolutely impractical to pave the city with gold bricks, is the statement a friend of mine made to me and he gave this reason:

Hoboes from all over the country would come here and extract them as they needed them and it would keep our streets torn up almost all the time.

What method do you think could be devised to remedy this condition?

I am open for suggestions.

wreck. Officials of the railroad already have declared the negligence of an employe was responsible for the wreck.

Discussing the Irvington wreck and its relation to the Indiana block signal law's enforcement, Chairman Wood said: "There'll come a time in Indiana when such accidents as the one today won't occur, if public sentiment will back up the commission in its attempts to make the Indiana block signal law a real success."

The Indiana block signal law, though mandatory in its provisions against failures of railroads to install adequate block signal systems, leaves the power of determining the adequate systems with the railroad commission. It also leaves with the commission the power to extend the date for the completion of the block signal work on roads, when it shall be made to appear that reasonable necessity for such extension shall exist. Power is also conferred on the commission to relieve any carrier from the obligations imposed by the law, when it shall be made to appear that the volume of traffic or trains or car movement over such railroad are such only that the same can be dispatched without substantial hazard to life and property over a line not so protected.

Much evidence that may be used by the prosecutor of the cases against the directions of the C. H. & D. may be taken from correspondence between the officials of the road and the state commission. The commission has not made any of the correspondence public.

Several of the men against whom indictments were returned are prominent in the railroad affairs of the nation, and one, George W. Perkins, is known nationally because of his steel and harvester trust affiliations and his activity as a Bull Moose leader in the last campaign.

Willis P. York, engineer of the passenger train, who also is charged with manslaughter, left Indianapolis Dec. 7 and his present whereabouts is said to be unknown. Mrs. York remained in Indianapolis until Dec. 17, when it is supposed that she joined her husband. His wife is said to have placed their household goods in storage before leaving the city. Neither confided to neighbors where they were going, but Mrs. York is said to have told an acquaintance that her husband had obtained employment on the Illinois Central.

residence if he is really going to do so, but surface indications are that it will be a play to win if the district is arranged as proposed.

Donald Smith, who claims he was the original Ralston man, is said to be looking longingly to appointment. Wallace Morgan, also has similar ambitions. Their hope of holding Rush county Democratic as a separate circuit is not robust and so it is said most of the Democrats will work for the Franklin annexation even though Gray does cinch it for the next four years.

INDIANAPOLIS AND I. & C. CARS COLLIDE

Little Damage is Done When Slippery Tracks Prevent Stopping of Interurban.

RUSHVILLE MEN IN CHARGE

A South East street car collided with an I. & C. traction car shortly after 6 o'clock last night at East street and Virginia avenue, and though the vestibule of each car was damaged, no one was injured, says the Indianapolis Star. The East street car was in charge of Ernest Petit, motorman, and Elmer Camden, conductor, and Harry Bothwell and Roy Riddle of Rushville had tributed the accident to the slippery condition of the tracks which prevented him from stopping his car before taking the cross-over at Virginia avenue. Patrolman Poole investigated.

TACKLES ANOTHER JOB.

Muncie Press: The Indianapolis Star has finally given up the job of interring the Republican party and will now be satisfied if it can bust the Marion club.

Mrs. Eoon Gilson states that she has not leased her farm north of the city and that she will not make her home with her four children in Anderson as was stated recently. Mrs. Gilson has rented her ground to Boon Power and will continue to reside in her own home.

WHAT LAW SAYS ON TRUSTEE REPORTS

Shall be Published in Two Leading Newspapers Representing Two Political Parties.

ARE BASED ON COUNTY VOTE

The question as to which newspapers should publish the annual report of the township trustees has arisen since the entrance of the Progressive party into the arena. The custom has obtained in previous years that the reports should be published in the two leading newspapers representing the opposite political parties casting the highest vote with the county as the basis. The law provides the report shall be published "one time in two leading newspapers published in the county representing the two political parties casting the highest number of votes in such county at the last general election." This would signify that the reports should be published in a Democratic and Republican newspaper here as the Democrats cast the most votes in Rush county and the Republicans were second.

The Rev. J. B. Meacham, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who has been confined to his home North Morgan street more than a month with bronchitis, is slowly recovering. He was able to put on his street clothes yesterday for the first time since his illness and the almost complete disappearance of the disease leads members of his family and his friends to believe that he will soon be his former self again.
